Stealing His Ginseng.

Unknown parties have been stealing ginseng from W. S. Ashby, proprietor of the Highland Nursery, several miles below this city. Mr. Ashby is very anxious to apprehend the culprits and has cautioned local ginseng dealers to be on the lookout for them. Mr. Ashby has been endeavoring to get a start with ginseng on a large scale, but his efforts have been meeting with bad luck, the precious root being stolen out of the field upon several occasions.

A Sustaining Diet.

These are the enervating days, when, as somebody has said, men drop by the roadside as if they were felled by a disease. They are fought with danger to people whose systems are poorly sustained; and this leads us to say, in the interest of the less robust of our readers, that the full effect of Hood's Sarsaparilla is such as to suggest the propriety of calling this medicine something besides a blood purifier and tonic—say, a sustaining diet. It makes it much easier to bear the heat, assures refreshing sleep, and will without any doubt avert much sickness at this time of year.

Cloverport is a Healthy Town.

If few deaths is an index to the health of a place, Cloverport is certainly one of the healthiest towns in the country, and this fact alone should cause more people to locate within its limits. The small number of deaths here during the first half of 1904, for a town of nearly 2,000 inhabitants, seems almost remarkable to not a few persons who have noted the fact and discussed it.

During some months there has not been a single death and sometimes for five and six weeks this is the case, as during this summer.

PARKER AND DAVIS ARE CHOSEN AS STANDARD BEARERS BY DEMOCRATS.

Last Wednesday was the opening day of the Democratic national convention, 10,000 people being seated in the great coliseum at St. Louis when the meeting was called to order. The feature of the day was the address of the Hon. John Sharp Williams, temporary chairman of the Democratic National Convention. With sharp sarcasm he assailed the official record of the Republican party, and told how the Democratic party intends to carry out Jeffersonian precepts in its administration.

The first day marked the passing of Bryanism, although the Nebraska was given a number of hearty cheers. The mention of Cleveland's name evoked a noisy demonstration.

Thursday the efforts of officials to control the galleries were hopeless, the day being one of wild disorder. The Bryan-Hearth combination had succeeded in packing the convention hall with 2,000 or 3,000 of their rooters and hooters, and, according to some, Bryan received a great ovation when he entered the hall, but it was also plain to many that the ovation was manufactured, he having received only the cheers of the Bryan-Hearth hooters, who had been instructed to "rah," as much as possible for "Bryan." Tammany resigned to the Parker programme Thursday and everything was Parker.

Thursday the Hon. Champ Clark, who was elected permanent chairman over Bailey, of Texas, in his speech, convulsed the convention time and again with his witty digs at Republicans and Republicanism. During the day the Kentucky delegation was busy honoring Gov. Beckham for vice-president.

The convention spent the morning hours Friday waiting for the report of the Committee on Resolutions, which had been at work for hours on the platform. A committee was appointed by Chairman Clark to call on the Resolutions Committee and learn from them when their report would be submitted to the convention. Just before the noon hour, the convention's emissaries announced that the Resolutions Committee would require until 8 o'clock p. m. to prepare its report, but that the action of the committee would be unanimous and a platform submitted which, he declared, would bring the party a "glorious victory." The convention then took a recess until 8 o'clock.

Beginning at 8 o'clock Friday evening the convention held an all-night session. The platform was read and adopted soon after the opening of the session, but the nominations were not made until 5:30 o'clock Saturday morning, when Judge Anton B. Parker, of New York, was nominated for president on the first ballot. Parker received 458 votes on the first ballot. Idaho changed her six votes, giving him 664 votes, and West Virginia added three votes, giving him the 667 votes, or two-thirds necessary. Champ Clark moved that the nomination be made unanimous. Amid the wildest enthusiasm the nomination was made unanimous and the convention adjourned until 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. One of the greatest features of the session was the masterful address of Bryan, who was listened to by the vast audience with more attention than any man who spoke during the convention.

At the last session of the convention, held Saturday and Sunday night, Henry Davis, of West Virginia, was nominated for vice-president on the first ballot. Davis is a railroad president, banker, coal operator and former United States Senator.

Early Saturday morning Parker sent a telegram to the convention stating that he regarded the gold standard as fixed and irrevocably established, and would act in accordance with his views if elected. The message caused a general commotion at the convention. After a long debate the convention replied to Parker that his views were not inconsistent with his acceptance of the nomination, and this answer was overwhelmingly adopted.

Favors the reclamation of arid lands by irrigation. Favors election of United States Senators by popular vote. Demands statehood for Arizona and New Mexico. Favors reciprocity, especially with Canada. Favors reduction of the army. Favors generous pensions. Demands the ship subsidy. Demands honest enforcement of the civil service laws.

Harvey. "Certainly this dog of an un-believer looked as if he could pay well. It would do him to let him remain on board. After disposing of his concealed passenger he had no objections to making a little more ready money."

Out upon the Caspian still the vessel, and Harvey watched the lazy methods of the sailors. Five good men could have handled the boat in a storm. It took all twenty of them to do it in calm water.

Hassan thought to earn the money by placing Harvey on another boat. He stood in the bow and scanned the horizon. But all that day he saw none and began to get uneasy.

"It seems he expects a boat to overtake him," thought Harvey. Hassan had been looking ahead for a boat. Now he cast his eyes astern. He was looking for the Russian gunboat he knew would follow if it were suspected that Koura had been taken away in his vessel. All night they sailed, but saw nothing. In the morning a cry broke from Hassan. Just ahead lay a long, low hull, with sails that seemed capable, if properly handled, of producing great speed.

Could he see the black smoke that came from an approaching steamer. "Hassan is surprised, excited and afraid," said Harvey to himself. "I wonder if I've got myself mixed up in a smuggling game. That looks like a Russian gunboat coming."

The crew were evidently as excited as Hassan and watched with anxious eyes the gunboat.

"What vessel is that?" shouted Hassan to the boat ahead as they neared each other.

"This is the boat of our heavenly lord, the master of Behkama," came the answer.

Hassan's vessel was schooner rigged. The other was a sort of sloop, having a single mast with lateen sail. The sloop rounded to, and Hassan shouted:

"I have some news for you. Come close. The Muscovites are coming."

"Let us be shrewd," said the man on the black boat. "Let not the Muscovite see us together. What have you? Have you seen Mike?"

"Yes, it is that for which Mike went to Tiflis. Hurry! If the Muscovites catch him, I shall be in trouble."

"And what of me?" asked the other. "Karakul is not yet weary of this life."

The lateen sail was drawn to the wind, and the black boat shot away.

"Curses upon those cowards! What shall I do?" wailed Hassan. Then, turning in fury upon Harvey, he leaped out.

"This is because of you, miserable dog of a glutton! If they do not seize me, I will kill you! Allah, Allah, he praised; Allah, Bi Allah! Mohammed Resoul Ullah!"

"Strikes me you'd better be saying 'God be merciful to me, a sinner,'" said Harvey. "You've been up to something mean, I'll bet a dollar. You have got the most of it, but never say on a man. I wonder if it is smuggling."

There was no way trying to get away. The slow old boat was no match for the gunboat. The hull was growing larger every minute. Soon a puff of smoke was seen on the gunboat's deck, a boom was heard, and a shot bounded three times on top of the water and sank a few feet from Hassan's boat.

"By Jove! They'll sink this hull with me in it!" exclaimed Harvey. "Don't wonder that Hassan is afraid." The entire crew stood with folded arms. Their anxiety was read on Hassan's face, and their expressions were but reflections of his own. Hassan gave a command, and the boat swung round and waited. A small boat from the gunboat was soon up close, and two officers came aboard.

"You heart!" exclaimed one. "What do you mean by sneaking away in the night?"

"Hold on, my friend," said Harvey, for the officer had looked at him while speaking. "I don't sneak. I don't know what you want, but you are seriously interfering in my business. I have engaged this man to take me to Astrakhan."

"Astrakhan! But why did you leave Tiflis in the night?"

"Tiflis? I have been to Tiflis." "This boat left Tiflis in the night—three-four nights ago."

"With that I have nothing to do. I joined the boat and was immediately with this man, who seems to be in command, to take me to Astrakhan or put me aboard a boat that was going there."

"Is that true, Osmanni?" asked the officer.

"It is true, O great representative of the greatest ruler on earth except the padishah."

"Then tell me why you left Tiflis in the night?"

"O great one, I will tell you what happened. It is a strange tale that I can scarcely believe myself. Perhaps it is not known to the O great one that I brought a cargo of goods to Tiflis, which I sold to the bazaar. I had been waiting for a cargo to take to Astrakhan, for there awaits me there a valuable cargo for Astrakhan. I discovered some of the finest linen, and as I wished to sail early in the morning I went to the bazaar of the bazaar and told him what I had found. He and his lovely daughter at once returned with me to the boat. I placed some wine before them and went to get some of the linen. I was seized and knocked down and some cloth was snatched in my mouth. I heard the merchant speaking and also the girl scream, but I was bound securely and could not go to the relief of this young lady. I did not know what her father was doing, but I could hear him speaking loudly and harshly. In the morning two strangers came to me and said they had taken command of my boat. They did not permit me to go far from them, and through me they gave orders to the men. We sailed from Tiflis, and at a small place just before we reached Salatin these men left the boat. But they ordered me to take the girl to Astrakhan. They also said that at Salatin a clamor would get on Hassan and that he would go to Astrakhan also, but I believed that something was wrong and refused to take him. At Salatin these men just came from the wharf and came on board at the risk of his life and insisted upon being carried to Astrakhan. He asked if I had the young lady, and I told him no. I was about to put them on board that boat when I saw your smoke and believed it was wisest to wait and tell them the truth."

"Is that true? Could you understand?" the officer asked of Harvey.

"That part concerning me all true except that I know no young lady. I have heard of no young lady since I came on the boat."

"Is this young lady?" asked the officer.

"I will bring her to you," said Hassan.

He went into the cabin and soon returned with Koura, who gave a scream of delight when she saw the Russian officer.

"Oh, my father! What have they done to him?"

"That is to be learned. He was attacked by two men who reached the boat just as it nearly reached the Caspian. What do you know about this strange matter?"

"So I tried a little. We went to see some linen."

"Did you see Hassan struck?"

"I saw nothing. I was blindfolded."

"What did your father say?"

"Nothing. I did not hear him speak."

"There seems to be some truth in your story. Do you swear you tell the truth, Osmanni?"

"I swear by Allah."

"And you, my friend? Who are you?"

"I am an American. I had no money. I was a young man here in trouble. I would have assisted her. Looks like a game of hide-and-seek."

"New mind what you like to do. Explain your presence."

"I am going to Astrakhan. I want to get to the big fair at Novgorod to exhibit some windmills."

"And you did not go to the big fair at Tiflis?"

"No. I just came from Astrakhan."

"How?"

"On board a German steamer."

"I think you are a liar. At any rate, you are arrested in the name of the czar."

"On what charge do you dare arrest an American citizen?"

"On the charge of abducting one of his majesty's subjects. This matter will be settled at Tiflis. Follow me."

"Here's luck!" exclaimed Harvey. "I've got to go to Tiflis to see my windmills. I have a cargo of windmills waiting at Astrakhan."

but as, as you are aware, he and my niece, Mike, Alma, met each other in St. Petersburg, where the fellow was selling some miserable American invention to pump water with windmills. Perhaps the machines were good enough, for he sold a lot of them. But these two fools must fall in love when my brother, Colonel Jurneff, had already planned upon having a prince for an son-in-law. But the young people overruled him and met at the big fair at Nijni Novgorod last year. After that we sent the American out of Russia, telling him if he ever returned we would look upon him as having forfeited the right to his country's protection and send him to Siberia or have him shot."

"That kept him out, excellency."

"Not a bit of it! I have just received a letter from my brother, who has heard from one of our secret agents at Paris, that the American is now at Astrakhan, in Persia, selling his wares, and has said he was going to the big fair at Nijni Novgorod, which soon begins."

"He is a courage—he is a fool, excellency."

"You might have finished your sentence. He is a courageous fool. But, thank heaven, I have the young lady safe here in Tiflis. If he expects to meet her at Novgorod, he will be disappointed. I must send word at once to Nijni Novgorod and Astrakhan. It may be possible to intercept him on the way."

The orderly bowed and was dismissed. A few minutes later higher officer entered. It was Captain Orskoff.

"I salute you, colonel."

"I am glad to see you, captain. You appear to be happy. Has anything new been discovered concerning the missing Biarlekis and his daughter?"

"I am glad to say we have recovered Koura. We have captured the two who were taking her away. They will be brought here and looked up to await trial."

"Then Biarlekis was not really trying to sell his daughter?"

"We cannot make head or tail of it. Koura knows little, but believes in her father's innocence. Surely he will be able to find the money. Moreover, he cannot be found."

"Is that rascally Turk, Hafis Effendi, who was taking her away?"

"Yes. I have placed him under arrest."

"If it was a slave selling affair, Hafis had a finger in it. He is a shrewd rascal. But who was it you captured, and where?"

"Colonel Thokt, with the gunboat stationed near the Kur, ran down on the way."

"With a burst of sorrow Marie fell at the feet of her mother."

"Oh, mademoiselle! I have such bad news for you! I would not tell, but I know you wish to hear all. He is here!"

"Here! You mean M. Irons—here in Tiflis?"

"Yes, mademoiselle, and will soon be in this very prison."

Alma's fingers clutched at her bosom, and she half rose from her chair, but, swaying like a reed, she reached out.

"Will you have water, mademoiselle?"

"No; I want news. How—where did they take him? Is it true? Did Alexander tell you?"

"Yes. It seems he was on the same boat. They say he was taking away Koura Biarlekis."

"I do not believe it! No; I know he loves me. It was not M. Irons."

"Yes, mademoiselle. But we shall soon know."

"Yes, but my heart will break with apprehension. If they have taken him, after warning him to get out of Russia, they will charge him with difficulty to punish him. You must help me, Marie. God, brave, faithful girl, and Alexander! What would I do without you both? O God, help him! Preserve him from their vengeance and cruelty."

"So you broke down under the strain and slipped to the floor. Resting her arms on her chair and burying her face in them, she burst into spasmodic sobs."

"They will kill her between them!"

"Yes, and also an American, who, I am sure, had a hand in the affair. With that motive, whether he was trying to get Koura off to marry her or was acting as an agent for the czar, I don't know. But he was arrested and brought here. You will see him soon."

"What name did he give?"

"He gave the name, I believe, Irons. Said he was going to Nijni Novgorod to sell pumps and windmills."

Colonel Jurneff nearly fell off his chair. He stared at Orskoff till that officer thought the governor of the prison was dazed.

"Do you know him? Did the lieutenant do wrong?"

"No; I know him! Now we have him in our hands we will finish him. Do I know him! We have watched him for a year, but he is like a cat. So he was stealing Biarlekis and his daughter?"

"I don't say he was stealing Biarlekis. We can find no trace of him."

"Call that orderly."

The orderly came in again and saluted.

"Alexander, that man of whom we spoke is under arrest. He was not content with following one of the most beautiful of Russian girls, but it was because he had abducted the daughter of Biarlekis."

"Has she been found?" asked the orderly, forgetting his manners in his intense interest.

"Yes, thank God! But her father is yet missing. We shall know more after we have heard them all. You understand your duties. I charge you to be shrewd and faithful. Go!"

The orderly, Alexander Borge, walked through the corridors of the prison with lagging steps. An officer passed him.

"My captain, I am not well," he said.

"May I be renewed for an hour?"

The orderly nodded and walked on into the office. Alexander hurried to another portion of the prison, where there were rooms luxuriously fitted up. He knelt devoutly at one, giving a certain signal. A young Russian girl opened the door.

"Alexander! You not on duty? What has happened?"

"I got relieved for an hour to tell you something for Mike, Alma."

"Giving you a letter?"

She ushered him into a small storage-closet and listened breathlessly.

"The colonel charged me again with having forfeited the right to his country's protection and send him to Siberia or have him shot."

"That kept him out, excellency."

"Not a bit of it! I have just received a letter from my brother, who has heard from one of our secret agents at Paris, that the American is now at Astrakhan, in Persia, selling his wares, and has said he was going to the big fair at Nijni Novgorod, which soon begins."

Colonel Jurneff nearly fell off his chair. He stared at Orskoff till that officer thought the governor of the prison was dazed.

"Do you know him? Did the lieutenant do wrong?"

"No; I know him! Now we have him in our hands we will finish him. Do I know him! We have watched him for a year, but he is like a cat. So he was stealing Biarlekis and his daughter?"

"I don't say he was stealing Biarlekis. We can find no trace of him."

"Call that orderly."

The orderly came in again and saluted.

"Alexander, that man of whom we spoke is under arrest. He was not content with following one of the most beautiful of Russian girls, but it was because he had abducted the daughter of Biarlekis."

"Has she been found?" asked the orderly, forgetting his manners in his intense interest.

"Yes, thank God! But her father is yet missing. We shall know more after we have heard them all. You understand your duties. I charge you to be shrewd and faithful. Go!"

The orderly, Alexander Borge, walked through the corridors of the prison with lagging steps. An officer passed him.

"My captain, I am not well," he said.

"A SECRET."

One great secret of youth and beauty for young women of the modern is the proper understanding of her womanly system and well-being. Every woman, young or old, should know herself and her physical make-up. A good way to arrive at this knowledge is to get a good doctor book, such as, for instance, the "People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," by Dr. V. Pierce, M. D., which can readily be procured by sending twenty-one cents in one-cent stamps for paper-bound volume, or thirty-one cents for cloth-bound copy, addressing Dr. R. V. Pierce, at Buffalo, N. Y.

The change from maidenhood to womanhood is the most important of her life. The strain at this time upon the blood-forming structures may be too great. Disorders of the functions peculiarly feminine are nearly all dependent upon defective nutrition. In all such cases Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is just the vegetable tonic for the female system.

"I cannot express my thanks for the benefit I have received from Dr. Pierce's medicine," writes Mrs. Julius Weir, of Cambridge, Ontario, Canada. "I took Favorite Prescription and feel that a perfect cure has been effected. I feel like a new woman, and I am a healthy and happy mother of four children."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was the first exclusively woman's tonic on the market. It has saved many women from the past third of a century than any other medicine for women. Do not let the drug peddlers persuade you to try some compound that has not had the test of so many years' experience.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be taken as "Favorite Prescription" whenever a laxative is required.

About the Size of It.

The man who handles the local department of a newspaper learns after this experience not to expect very many thanks for a column of pleasant things, but he knows as surely as come the seasons that a single line in which there is unintentional mistakes will cause some one to be heard. As it was, he has made pleasant mention of 999 times of some person, place or thing, but on the 1000th time fails to do so, he must not expect to be forgiven. The omissions may be from carelessness, but they are not from malice. The omissions may be from carelessness, but they are not from malice.

ask the readers of this paper who are suffering with indigestion or dyspepsia to call on them at once and get a bottle of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. If you know the value of this remedy, as we know it, you would not suffer another day. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is a thorough digestant and tissue-building tonic as well. It is endorsed personally by hundreds of people who, it has cured of indigestion, dyspepsia, palpitation of the heart and stomach troubles generally. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat. It is pleasant, palatable and strengthening.

Made County.

The local option elections were called in the Court House and Astor precincts by Judge Hagan Tuesday.

The election in Astor will be held on Wednesday, September 7, and on Thursday, September 15, in Court House. The petition of the "wets" is now in the hands of the clerk of the court in Astor precinct was withdrawn by the "wets."

The Kentucky and Indiana Bank at West Point has been reorganized, and the directors have selected the following officers: President, J. E. Yancey; Vice President, E. H. Shelman; Cashier, C. M. Manywhere.

"I have a card of introduction for admission to the English language," said the Literary Man as he yesterday left the Franklin Inn with a friend and turned into Thirteenth street.

"A new word!" asked the friend.

The Literary Man nodded.

"What is it?"

"Manywhere."

"Manywhere?"

"Yes, Lord Avelbury is the collier, and I think he has supplied the proverbial 'long-fall' word. We have 'nowhere,' 'somewhere,' 'anywhere,' 'elsewhere' and 'everywhere.' Why, then, not 'manywhere'?"

"But that's just 'We've had all the old compounds of there—our language seems to have a special weakness for them—and if there was a special want for this one we'd have had it long ago. Where would you have it?"

"Where? Oh, anywhere. The newspapers could use it constantly in their headlines nowadays—'Japanese

Up-To-Date Paragraphs.

Co-operation is in the air. The Dollar wheat is in the air. Twelve cent cotton is in the air. Seven cent cattle is in the air. And this is the year when farmers will come to the front. Farmers to the front. That's where they belong.

Get off the earth! The farmers can enforce this command if they will.

Remember, a good way to be at the speaker is to stand your wheat.

We will say again, that a granary on the farm is better than an elevator on the other man's lot.

Until the farms are built up in fertility the average yields of our crops cannot be increased. Until good prices prevail year after year the fertility cannot be restored.

Crop Report for June.

The crop report of the State Agriculture Department for the month of June has been sent out.

It is as follows:

"The early part of the month of June was generally dry giving a good opportunity to cultivate the growing crops. Good showers began about the 20th. While they were partial, they continued until nearly all parts of the State were reached and benefited. In some localities they were severe and washed hill land badly, doing some damage by drowning crops in low places. There are, however, still some sections that complain of drought.

The wheat harvest is over throughout the State, and thrashing has begun. The acreage is short and the crop is reported generally thin, but the head filled well and the grain is exceptionally good. There is some little damage by mold, caused by frequent showers while in shock. The oat crop is below the standard, having headed too low on account of the dry weather in June. Rye is fairly good, just a little below the average.

The corn crop is a little late, but has been well worked and gives promise of a full crop.

Since hemp has gotten out of the way of the cut worm it is doing fairly well. Barley is reported below an average.

The average of tobacco, especially in the western or dark district, is considerably reduced. Much of the planting all over the State was done so late that it will require an exceptionally good season to insure maturity in time to make a good quality.

Meadows, pastures and clover are reported in fair condition. The acreage in stock peas is less than an average on account of high prices of seed. There will be a fall potato crop, both in acreage and condition. Live stock of all kinds is reported in good condition. The apple and peach crops are reported about one-half of a full crop. Apples continue to fall off the trees before they mature. Other fruits, including grapes, are in good condition and promise a fair crop.

Garnishee Law Changed.

Of interest to merchants is the new garnishee bill, which was passed by the last Legislature and which became only this month a law without the Governor's signature. The bill appeals the provision of Section 1701 Kentucky Statutes, which, with reference to exemptions from attachment, reads: "Provided, That the exemption of fifty dollars shall not apply to debts contracted for food, fuel, medicine, raiment or house rent for the family." Under the old law the wages of a person earning less than $50 a month, were not subject to attachment and for food, raiment, fuel, etc. Now the exemption for debts of that character is the same as the exemption of any other debt. Under the present law unless a person earns more than $50 a month his wages cannot be attached for any debt.

NICER TO BE A COUNTRY DOCTOR THAN AN EDITOR.

The editor of the Hartford Herald has made a thorough inspection of the duties and occupations of life, and has come to the conclusion that the country editor has drawn the smallest prize. He says:

"Of all the laborers of the land who live by the efforts of their brain, perhaps the country editor has the hardest lot. The banker, the bookkeeper, the lawyer, the preacher, the doctor and others who must think out a livelihood, have their seasons of recreation and surcease from active labor. But the newspaper man knows no rest from the time he awakes until sleep claims him again. He is expected not only to hunt and find all the news, but to be able to write up anything from a dog fight to a 'leader' in the political situation—from a baby birth to a high social function. Upon a big city paper every writer has his part, but the country editor must do it all. He knows no rest during waking hours, and even when in the arms of Morpheus he is often tortured by the nightmare of some irate subscriber sitting astride of him and demanding to know at the point of a gun why a certain occurrence was or was not mentioned. Oh, it is lovely to be a country editor."

Formally Announces.

Hardinsburg, Ky., July 12.—(Special.)—Henry DeHaven Moorman has formally announced his candidacy for the office of county judge, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Mr. Moorman has been a practicing lawyer for four years, and has held the office of Master Commissioner of the Breckenridge Circuit Court and city attorney of Hardinsburg. He filled both these offices satisfactorily and with credit to himself.

Mr. Moorman is the secretary of the Democratic County Committee, having held this position a number of years. He starts out in the race with the support of strong men in the party, and will prove to be a hard man to defeat for the nomination, and, should he receive it, will make a strong fight before the people.

Should he be elected he would make a good judge in whom the people of the county would take just pride.

Keep an Account.

The American Farmer.

It is impossible to conduct a farm on business principles without keeping an account. Many farmers run their farms in a loose manner, not knowing what they are making or the work that is profitable or unprofitable. This is especially true in regard to sales of produce from week to week and the buying of the small necessary articles. The farmer as well as the merchant should keep an accurate account of every cent paid out and every cent paid in. Looking carefully after the incoming and outgoing cents, in a practical manner will greatly assist in keeping the mortgage off the farm. We are told not to "run in debt" either for wages sold or money borrowed; be content to want things that are not absolutely necessary rather than run up the score. Many of us fully realize that he "who goes a borrowing goes a sorrowing," and yet sometimes it seems that we cannot avoid going into debt. When this is true we should keep an account of everything ourselves; "creditors have better memories than debtors," and all are known to make mistakes, so let us be known as the farmer who always keeps an account. Some farmers do the same work, and raise the same crops every year and wonder why they are not successful financially. By keeping an accurate account they will find that their expense of doing this work has been greater than the income, and they could see wherein some change could be made that would yield a profit. The grocer, the merchant, the doctor, and all other bills creep up much faster than they think, unless we are keeping an account. If no account is kept we are not inclined to think of the bills until we are reminded it is pay day, and "creditors are great observers of set days and times," but if we are keeping our accounts we are daily reminded of expenditures, and if we are spending more than we can afford, we can in some manner contrive to cut a halt.

Any common note book can be used and the income and expenses should be noted immediately. No merchant would trust to memory and jot down items of such importance once a week. Date each item and ascertain at the close of each day your financial standing. Look at the condition of things in a fair and square manner, and make a great effort to meet each bill when due, and remember that the paying of debts is, next to the grace of God, the best means of the world to deliver you from a thousand temptations to sin and vanity.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because it is so common. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidneys become diseased and the vital organs of the body break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles must always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing, overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sized bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail, Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this wonderful offer in this paper.

Don't make any mistake but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

No One But Yourself if You Don't Get Well When Sick.

All we can do is give advice. Of course that's easy. But we can do more than that. We can give you the first bottle of our medicine free, if it fails to help you. We could not afford to do this unless our medicine was good. Such an offer, on the wrong kind of medicine, would put a merchant prince in the poor house. Dr. Miles' Nervine, however, as years of experience have proved, is a medicine that cures the sick. Those whom it cannot benefit—less than one in ten thousand—we prefer to refund their money.

All we ask of you is to try Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine for your complaint. If you suffer from sleeplessness, nervous exhaustion, dizziness, headache, muscular twitches, melancholy, loss of memory, weak stomach, poor blood, bilious troubles, epilepsy, St. Vitus' Dance, etc., we will guarantee to benefit you or refund your money. You are the doctor.

OLD MULL'S PLEA FOR THE WOMEN.

Mr. Editor—Can you tell us why it is that wage-earning women don't receive the same wages as men, when they put in the same time and do the same work? Do saleswomen get the same wages as men clerks? No, they don't.

When harvest time comes on the farmer must have extra help. He pays from $1.50 to $1.55 per day. Of course he must have extra help in the kitchen. Does he pay his hired girls $1.50 per day? No, but $1.50 per week, no mind you. She washes, scrubs, sweats over the stove from morning till night, makes up beds and does a thousand other things, but receives the insignificant sum of $1.50. Why this discrimination? Is it because she is a woman? Well, it looks that way.

We read of an incident that happened last week up in Massachusetts. A city official died. The official had a lady assistant. She was honest and qualified to fill the place until the dead man's successor was elected. There was one good man among the political bosses that proposed to run the young lady for the office. Well, sir, the other bosses jumped to their feet and gave this good man to understand that it would never do. She was a woman and had no political influence and that $3,000 a year was too much for a woman to get for a year's work. Now, what do you think of that? Just because she was a woman and honest, $3,000 was too much. Oh! how charitable we male mortals be.

Why is it that women are not allowed the right of suffrage? Just because men know darned well as soon as women get the ballot in their hands, their damn shoes will go to the bow-wow. Carrie Nation would be elected president. The first proclamation would be that the country should be cleared of saloons. The saloons would be smashed from hell's half acre to Harper's Ferry. Isn't it possible that women would vote as intelligently as men? Yes, more so; for a woman would make up her mind who would vote for and go straight to the poles and not get the first saloon, fill up on big licks and kill-m quick, march to the poles and vote as some political boss dictates.

At this juncture an old wag bopped up and said: Look here, Mull, are you giving up? You are a darned old bachelor. It's natural you should throw taffy and make "goo-goo" eyes at the girls. Well, as to our being an old bachelor, we don't deny that for a moment; but if we were run with defalcators and absconders, taking a vacation.

Men will sit up nights preaching about the extravagances of women and then turn right around and give from three to five dollars for a jug of lusty skull whiskey. After he has drained it to the dregs all he has left is swelled a head and an empty jug to show for the fun. Henry will spend $2.00 for chewing tobacco to chew up and spit out. If dear wife asks for fifty cents to buy a calico dress he will kick a hole through the atmosphere that a box car could pass through.

Too Late Then.

Lee Turner, editor of the Fulton Leader, recently received a fine chicken, which he, supposing it to be a token of appreciation from a discerning reader, took it home and ate it for dinner. The following morning he received this letter: "Dear Editor: Yesterday I sent you a chicken in order to settle a dispute which has arisen here. It died with a new kind of disease. My wife thinks it had cholera while I think it had bird stagers. Please examine it and let me know what you think the trouble was."

Good Bathing.

Is often followed by severe sunburn. Paracram draws out the fire of sunburn, prevents blistering, soothes the pain instantly, and heals quickly without an ugly scar. Don't fail to carry a bottle of Paracram with you on your vacation.

New Brick Pavement.

W. R. Emby began work last week laying a brick pavement in front of Popburn Bros. store and warehouse, on High street.

LEARN TO COOK.

According to Mrs. Lawrence Hodgkinson, of the Chicago Progressive Health Club, "A husband will eat anything his wife wants him to if he loves her." She announced that to an admiring audience of women.

Maybe Mr. Lawrence Hodgkinson is that kind of a man. It is possible that he can consume burned biscuits and tough steak, and marmalade, and "ducky" the while. If so, he deserves a halo.

Man is a creature of good resolutions. He breaks them because he is a man. He marries because he loves, and being in love, he views the girl through rose-colored glasses. He knows that he has faults and he imagines that he has married an angel. The first few months of married life love covers a multitude of sins, both of omission and commission. It is right that they should. But there comes a day of reckoning for the girl who never learned anything about housework, and whose mother always did the dishes and the cooking.

Ethelbert suddenly discovers that there is something lacking. Home doesn't seem like the home he has been used to. His digestion bothers him, and he likes to sneak over to mother's, just to get a bite to eat. If he is unwise he makes cutting remarks, and a woman cries. If he has sense, and Helen is blessed with a generous share of brains, both will discover that romance can never take the place of solid food, and on the long journey of married life there must be a fair amount of equipment, or else shipwreck will follow.

So she learns to cook as quickly as she can, and he helps sometimes, by donning an apron, and more often by simply keeping his mouth shut.

The average woman doesn't want a husband built on the lines described by Mrs. Hodgkinson. She would know that about three-fifths of the time he was lying, and the rest of the time getting ready to perjure himself. Such men can never be popular with modern women.

This much advice can safely be given to the girls who are contemplating matrimony: "Don't bank on a man's disposition too much. Learn to cook."

NO WOMAN WAS EVER LOVED LESS, BECAUSE SHE WAS A GOOD HOUSEKEEPER.—Cincinnati Post.

$3000 Worth

Will be cheerfully paid in lawful money of the United States, by the undersigned, proprietors of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, if they cannot show the original testimonials and signatures of the individuals volunteering those published below, and also of every testimonial among the thousands which they are constantly publishing attesting the superior curative properties of their several medicines, and thus proving the genuineness and reliability of all the multitude of testimonials volunteered by grateful people, in their behalf.

THE REASON.—There is no medicine equal to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, for the purifying of the blood. It carries off the poisons which contaminate the life fluid. It increases the activity of the blood-making glands and gives the body an increased supply of pure, body-building blood. It builds up the body with sound, healthy flesh instead of flabby fat, promotes the appetite, feeds the nerves, and so gives to weak, nervous people vitality and vigor.

There is no alcohol contained in "Golden Medical Discovery," and it is absolutely free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics.

WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.

HON. LEE COHN

I take pleasure in expressing my satisfaction with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery as a reliable medicine, worthy of the confidence of those seeking relief. It is certainly a most efficient specific for affections of the digestive organs, headache, heartburn, and kindred troubles caused by a disordered stomach.

Many busy men suffer from dyspepsia caused by careless habits, too rapid eating and irregular meals. Little attention is paid to this until it is too late, and then you naturally ask yourself "What shall I do to get well?" I have found your "Discovery" by far the most efficacious of any medicine I have known. A few doses give relief. Being an honest medicine and well worthy of praise, it has my hearty endorsement.

Yours respectfully,
Hon. Lee Cohn,
Louisville, Ky.
(Councilman 9th Ward.)

"I have been greatly benefited through the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery," writes O. T. Rose, Esq., of 125 W. Short Street, Lexington, Ky. Constipation, dyspepsia, indigestion, flatulence, biliousness and torpid liver, which affected the digestive organs and clogged up the entire system. Had used different medicines but found they did not help me any; in fact, nothing that I took was of any special benefit until I tried your "Golden Medical Discovery." I soon found that this medicine wrought a wonderful change in my entire body; cleared up the sluggish channels of digestive organs. This activity restored the flagging strength, increased appetite and vitalized the forces until work seemed but play, my sleep was restful and sound, brain active, and I felt like a new man. Four bottles of your "Golden Medical Discovery" caused this wonderful change, and I have certainly every reason in the world to feel grateful and to fully endorse your great remedy. For the past two years I have enjoyed perfect health."

Children, look in those eyes, listen to that dear voice, notice the feeling of even a single touch that is bestowed upon you by that gentle hand; make much of it while you have the most precious of all gifts, a loving mother. Read the unfathomable love of those eyes, the anxiety in that tone and look, however slight your pain. In after life you may have friends; but never again will you have the inexpressible love and gentleness lavished upon you which none but a mother bestows.

There has ever been a spirit of contentment in the manner in which the "home man" is regarded by some of his acquaintances, and there seems to be an underlying vein of sarcasm in the comments of some as they refer to withering scorn "to those of their fellow men who are perhaps in every way their moral and intellectual superiors." The "home man" is the good man, the honest man, the manly man, and the more one spends at home with his family, after his day's work is done, the more is it to his credit and eternal happiness. The gay fellow who spends his time away from home as much as possible with a coterie of equally gay associates, lives the life of the butterfly, who is devoid of benefit to himself or any body else and which, when it has been lived, has made no one any better. The "home man" who spends his leisure time at home with his wife and little ones, or if he is unmarried with his mother and sisters, is the sensible man, the man for whom life holds something broader and better than the shams and so-called pleasures of a butterfly existence.

Compare a taste for dress with a taste for knowledge, virtue and piety. Dress up an ignorant woman in the "height of fashion," put on plumes and flowers and diamonds and gewgaws; paint her face and gird up her waist and, if it is necessary, wear this side of a painted, feathered savage, nor is there anything more unpleasant to behold. Yet just such young women we meet every day on the street and in public places. Why is it so? It is because too many women are regarded as a doll to be dressed, a plaything to be petted. How the soul of womanhood is dwarfed and shriveled by such trifles and kept away from the great and useful fields of active thought by the gewgaws that hang from their waists. The richest dress is always worn on the soul. The adornments that will not perish, and that all men must admire, shine from the heart through this life. We do not criticize the well-dressed person, man or woman. We can not feel that God is a lover of dress. He has placed robes of beauty and glory upon all his works. Every flower is dressed in richness; every field blushes beneath a mantle of beauty, every bird is veiled in brightness, every bird is clothed in the habiliments of the most exquisite taste. The cattle upon a thousand hills are dressed by the hand divine, but to love dress is quite different to being a slave to fashion.

The home influence is either a blessing or a curse, either for good or evil. It can not be neutral. In either case it is mighty commerce with our birth, going with us through life, clinging to us in death, reaching into the eternal world. The specific influence of husband and wife, of parent and child, of brother and sister, of teacher and pupil, united and harmoniously blended constitute the home influence. It is great, silent, irresistible and permanent. Like the calm, deep stream it flows on in silent, but overwhelming power. It strikes its roots deep into the human heart and spreads its branches wide over our whole being. Like the lily that braves the tempest, and the Alpine flower that leans its cheek on the bosom of eternal snows, it is extended amid the wildest storms of life and breathes a softening spell in our bosom even when a heartless world is freezing up the fountains of sympathy and love. Home influences are like the deep springs into flinty rock. To erase them we must remove every strata of our being. Even the infidel lives under the holy influence of a pious mother's impressions. John Randolph could never shake off the restraining influence of a little prayer his mother taught him when a child. It preserved him from the clutches of a vowed infidelity. The home influence gives the first tone to our desires and fancies. Ingredients that will either sweeten or embitter the whole cup of life.

It is a fine thing for any woman who has missed marrying a man with a bad or indifferent character. We know there are women who say they do not mind men being a little wild, that when they settle down they make the best husbands. The devil never spread a blacker lie among intelligent people, and the wonder is in spite of the poor, broken-hearted, miserable women who have tried the experiment and failed, any intelligent, sensible woman will believe it for a minute. We do not believe in any woman marrying a man in a salacious spirit, hoping to reform him. If his regard for his sweetheart does not lead him to reform, consideration for his wife will not do it. If a man has lived a fast life until he is twenty-five or thirty years of age, nothing but the grace of God will make a decent husband out of him; and life in the home with a man of this kind will in time fade away the delicate tints of womanhood from the sweetest character.

"Maid choosing husband remember this:
You take his nature with his name,
Ask, too, what his religion is,
For you will soon be of the same."

The pill that will, will fill the bill.

A Speculation No Longer.

Advertising has become a future. It no longer is considered an experiment or a donation out an investment. It employs the best talent; it receives high salaries for its services; poor and fraudulent goods are being pushed backwards by this mighty force, and the commercial world is entering upon a busier, more profitable era. Only those publishers who have a bona fide circulation and quote honest rates, giving dollar for dollar, can hope to survive.

Believed That Day Of Silver Dollar Is Gone.

Washington, July 5.—A statement attributed to the director of the mint, George T. Roberts, to the effect that "there will never be another silver dollar coined in this country," has caused unusual interest in the financial world, and the interview sent out from Portland, Ore., is given prominence in financial journals. The director of the mint is in Alaska, but inquiry among his associates here shows that they are rather skeptical as to his having made such a sweeping statement. One of the officials said:

"It is undeniably a fact that the supply of silver bullion that was purchased under the Sherman law is exhausted, and there is no present prospect of any more new silver dollars being turned out by the government. In fact, the possibility would seem to depend only on the election of a 16 to 1 Congress. Altogether the bullion purchased under the Sherman law amounted to 108,000,000 ounces, or $200,000,000 of this has been used up, except 50,000,000 ounces of bullion, which his being held for subsidiary coin."

In this connection the belief is expressed in financial circles that the day of silver bullion is gone. At the present rate at which the old coins are being called in the original supply of silver "cart wheels" is expected to be rapidly diminished, and a silver dollar will become a rarity; in fact, it has already reached that point in business transactions in the east. Whether Congress will see fit to renew the supply before all silver dollars disappear is, of course, a matter of which the mint officials are unable to speak.

Weak Hearts

are caused by indigestion. If you eat a little too much, or if you are subject to attacks of indigestion, the stomach expands—swells, and puffs up against the heart. This crowds the heart and shortens the breath. Rapid heart beats and heart disease is the final result. Koli Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat, takes the strain off the heart, cures indigestion, dyspepsia, sour stomach, and contributes nourishment, strength and health to every organ of the body. Sold by all druggists.

Value of State's Property.

The total value of property in the State of Kentucky, as estimated for taxation by the State Board of Equalization, which completed its labors a few days since, is $626,744,205. This is an increase over last year of $14,804,340 in assessed value, the valuation of 1903 having been placed at $611,939,865. Of the increase made over last year, the sum of $8,855,490 was a natural increase in the counties, and the sum of $5,948,741 was increased by action of the State Board of Equalization. The rate by the State Board was on the farm land and personality in thirty-six counties and on the town lots in twelve counties. The assessment as made in the other counties of the State was either accepted on first consideration by the Board, or after hearing delegations from the counties.

Report Was Not True.

A report was circulated here last week that the Great American Water Shows, which exhibited here recently, had failed and had gone out of business. This was a mistake, as the shows are at Evansville re-organizing and making improvements.

Col. Newman, the owner and manager, was in the city Friday to see Capt. Price, of the Price floating palace, and to purchase one of his clipper for use on his water shows.

HOW AGRICULTURE IS TO BE ROBBED.

Farmers' Wages To Be Reduced
$1,000,000,000 By Speculators,
Etc., in 1904.

If the speculators, food trusts, packers and other people who have been making prices for farm products carry out their designs, farmers will receive for their 1904 crops more than a thousand million dollars less than they will receive if the prices can be maintained on the present basis, says the last issue of Up-To-Date Farming, official organ of the American Society of Equity.

Shall this thing come to pass? Farmers work longer hours at harder labor for less pay than any other class of people in the country, yet the people who have been pricing the crops are determined to cut down the price of their products through which they get their wages.

True the farmers will have a living even when prices are low. But how about the merchants and manufacturers and all the people dependent upon them? The farmers must sell at a profit if they will have any money to spend. Big crops at low prices have been the curse of our country and when they come again we will have famine and hard times. Therefore, everybody should work for good prices for farmers' crops and prosperity will continue.

The question may well be asked: Farmers, what are you going to do about it? You see the impending danger. You see you have no representatives in government, no friends in business, no institutions, no newspapers, that are fighting your battles. Except one institution, The American Society of Equity, and one newspaper, Up-To-Date Farming, you are numerous enough important enough to take care of your own interest. You can change the fatal trend of prices downward, and keep them at the equitable mark if you will learn to control marketing. This is what you must learn. You must stop striking from the work of producing, but you must strike against your vicious system of marketing—of dumping your crops without any regard to the demand. You must market a year's supply over a year to meet a year's demand. You must keep your crops out of the public elevators, warehouses and stock yards, where others manipulate them, but let them come off of the farm when the buyers will seek them at your price. All these things can be done quickly. In many cases it has been accomplished already.

Changes in Monument.

Lexington, Ky., July 4.—Signor Moretti, the Italian sculptor, who is engaged in making the Goebel statue to be placed on top of the Goebel monument in the Frankfort cemetery, has made many changes in the appearance of the figure during the past few days, and it is now believed the model will meet with approval of the Goebel Commission when they convene here to inspect it within the next few days. The commissioners have viewed the work on two different occasions, and each time Arthur Goebel and other members of the commission found fault with figure and offered suggestions which in their opinion would improve the looks of the statue. All the suggestions offered by the commission have been carried out by the sculptor and the figure as it now stands is a perfect likeness of the dead statesman.

Mad Managerie of Her Own.

A story is told of a Cherokee woman who has married six times and never got out of the animal line. When she was a girl she was known as Miss Molly Panther. She was an Indian named Coon, and when this gentleman was transferred to the "happy hunting grounds" she became Mrs. Fox. The Fox did not last always and when he married the last one, the widow married a wild, placid man named Mule, who never had any kick coming until he harnessed up to draw his load across the Grand Divide. After a period of mourning the widow entered the realm of matrimonial bliss and became Mrs. Wolf, and when his scalp went to the Great Spirit, along with his corporal remains, she became the wife of a

JAPAN IN VICTORY AND DEFEAT.

Japan has shown that she possesses all the qualities that together form the sum of national greatness; she has exhibited them in such marked degree that she has won the world's admiration, the admiration even of her political opponents. She has displayed the qualities of courage, patriotism, far-seeing intelligence; the Japanese are a military as well as a commercial people; on sea as well as on land they have shown themselves masters of their craft. Now, a nation so richly endowed as this is no more to be destroyed by defeat (if defeat comes) by preponderating force than land can be rendered sterile because a growing crop has been laid low under the merciless attack of hail, rain and scorching sun. It is within the range of possibilities that Japan may meet with reverses, that in the course of her triumph progress there may come a time when she can make no further headway, and the result may be a stalemate. Even so, if the worst befalls and she must sue for peace, her defeat will no more mean her political effacement than the entry of German troops into Paris in 1871 stilled the voice of France in the council of nations.

There is only one phase of the character of the Japanese of which we know nothing. We should like to know if they can be resolute in defeat as they have shown themselves restrained in victory. So far, the reports of the Japanese naval and military commanders have been models of modest brevity. Facts have been stated in the most concise terms, and deeds of rare heroism have been recorded in language so terse that it almost seemed as if Japan alone of all the world were unimpressed by the devotion and courage of her defenders. We know, however, that the Japanese are wanting in neither imagination nor feeling; but their emotions do not easily rise to the surface, and they glory in their self-control. The history of the world has shown that the Asiatic has never been able to stand up under severe punishment. Defeat destroys his morale, and with the fatalism inseparable from his character he bows his head to the inevitable and waits in stolid hopelessness until Kismet shall once more revolve the wheel in his direction. But the Japanese are the paradox of Asia; of all Asiatics they are the least Asiatic. I have always been impressed by the fact that the accident of geography has had a tremendous influence upon the Japanese character, and that it is because they are an island people that they are to-day disproving all the world's preconceived theories. For the Japanese are in all Asia the one island people, and the profound mystery of of the sea is never more profoundly revealed than in the unconscious effect it has on the character and moral fibre of a people whose very blood runs more quickly because the salt of the sea is in their veins and their faces have been washed by the spume of ocean.—[A.
